

Cookie Ideas for Your Baby Shower

1. Custom Party Favors

Personalized baby-themed cookies are an easy, budget-friendly way to add a special touch. Package them in clear bags or boxes with ribbons for a polished, memorable take-home treat.

2. Cookie Decorating Station

Setting up a DIY cookie-decorating station for guests could be just the thing to get them mingling and laughing. Equip them with supplies like pastel-colored icings, sprinkles, edible glitter, or even stencils in baby shapes to make decorating fun and easy for everyone.

3. Cookie Games

Switch things up a bit and play a game like “Guess the Cookie Flavor” instead. You could bake some fun and unique flavors like lavender honey, matcha, or rosemary lemon. But if you want to stick with a baby focus, flavor your cookies like common baby foods.

4. Edible Place Cards

No, we’re not talking about that powdery, edible-but-nasty sugar paper you can write on. Rather, just set an elegant cookie at each place at the table, and write the guests’ names on them with edible ink or icing.

5. Centerpieces

Forego the sneeze-inducing flower arrangements and clunky mason jars. Instead, you could arrange cookies on stands or in jars. They could also be styled as bouquets or tiered displays. And just add mini cookie pops or edible flowers for an extra touch.

6. Cookies by Mail

Sometimes, you just can’t make it to someone’s baby shower. Sending a box of beautifully decorated cookies is a thoughtful way to show your support and be part of the celebration.

7. Themed Showers

Choose a cookie theme for the shower. Think: “Sugar, Spice, and Everything Nice,” “Baked with Love,” “Cookie Monster,” or “A Chocolate Chip Off the Old Block.” It will be a clever and delicious through-line that brings the whole party together.
